Mental Health Research Network

This is the fifth MHRN Scientific Conference, which follows on from four successful meetings in Manchester, Newcastle, London and Nottingham. The conference will be multidisciplinary, bridging basic and clinical science through to public mental health. The focus will be to showcase high quality international research; the key to better understanding of causes and treatments of individual disorders in real life settings. There will be a workshop on methodological issues on Monday, followed by a welcome reception in the evening. The conference will include both plenary and parallel sessions.

For further information please contact:

The Mental Health Research Network is funded by and part of the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR), and is one of the Topic Specific Networks of the NIHR CRN CC (Clinical Research Network Coordinating Centre).

The Conference Programme Session will include:

- Genes x Environment in depression
- Treatment issues in Primary Health Care
- Understanding psychotic symptoms
- Child & Adolescent depression
- Late life depression
- Psychology of depression
- Neurobiology of depression
- How service users and researchers can work together

Participants are eligible for up to 10 CPD credits
